NAME: Raj Mehta

EMAIL: mehta@camosun.ca

OFFICE: Paul 318

HOURS: Tuesday/Thursday, 10-11:30am; online Monday, 10-11AM (please email me for instructions)

As your course instructor, I endeavour to provide an inclusive learning environment. However, if you experience barriers to learning in this course, do not hesitate to discuss them with me. Camosun College is committed to identifying and removing institutional and social barriers that prevent access and impede success.

CALENDAR DESCRIPTION

This course provides core critical thinking, reading, research and writing skills transferable to academic disciplines. Students practice various forms of academic writing, including summary, critical analysis, and written research. Analysis of textual rhetoric, discourse, and style, along with academic essay-writing, develops self-awareness of methods of inquiry, critique, and reflection.

PREREQUISITE(S):

One of:

C+ in English 12

C in English 12 Camosun Alternative

B in ENGL 170

CO-REQUISITE(S):

EQUIVALENCIES:

ENGL 150

COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES / OBJECTIVES

Upon successful completion of this course a student will be able to:

Form critical responses to ideas.

Distinguish between fact and opinion.

Analyse and articulate the reasoning behind an argument.

Demonstrate a critical examination of ideas through close reading, inquiry, divergent thinking, evaluation of evidence and interpretation, as well as an understanding of rhetoric, reason, logic and word usage.

Produce writing under exam conditions, as well as outside class.

Differentiate academic and non-academic writing.

Write in an academic style common to multiple disciplines.

Approach writing as an active exploration of multiple perspectives on a topic.

Compose effective summaries.

Select and use rhetorical patterns purposefully.

Employ a comprehensive writing process, which includes prewriting, focusing, planning, multiple drafting, conferring, revising and editing/proofing.

Develop an argument with a controlling thesis; write unified, coherent paragraphs, including effective introductions, transitions and conclusions in correct, clear, effective English.

Develop effective, focused research questions.

Demonstrate control, clarity and cohesion in the development and organization of ideas.

Vary style purposefully for planned rhetorical strategies.

Write for specific results.

Critique his/her own and others' writing.

Read and analyze complex texts from various academic disciplines.

Vary reading approaches for different purposes, such as personal response, persuasion, and criticism.

Participate and engage in a dynamic, stimulating exchange of ideas based upon close textual readings.

Discuss and debate text using terminology appropriate to the discipline and context of those texts.

Analyze textual readings, which may include visual texts, by identifying controlling ideas, supporting details, dominant rhetorical pattern, subtext, tone and stylistic features.

Summarize readings to reflect coherently the original's ideas, purpose, organization, and tone.

Critically read your own and others' writing.

Demonstrate information literacy skills.

Determine the nature and extent of the information needed.

Know and use what information resources are available, in different formats.

Use print and electronic resources effectively and efficiently.

Evaluate sources for authority, relevance, reliability, currency and other criteria.

Incorporate and integrate research through correct use of summary, paraphrase and quotation.

Document sources fully and ethically, according to specified bibliographic conventions.

Develop self-awareness as an academic writer and contributor.

Articulate one's position in a critical debate of ideas.

Reflect on one's own writing for continuous improvement.

Assignments

1. Quizzes:

There are five quizzes over the term. These involve short answer responses to assigned reading material and/or class lectures and discussions. On some occasions there will be group work in class that allows review and practice of course material – students are advised to have their texts each class.

2. Source Evaluation:

This assignment should give me a sense for your research abilities so take time to review and select material carefully. This section of your assignment demonstrates your ability to search for source material in databases (Camosun College link to databases: <http://camosun.ca/libguides.com/DatabasesSubject>). For this reason, things like encyclopedias, textbooks, magazines, Google, etc. are usually not adequate for this assignment. This assignment has two parts:

1. You are to write a short paragraph outlining the topic you will address in your final essay. At this early stage, you should not have a defined thesis. Rather at this stage, you should have a framed question that is guiding your reading. State clearly the research question and establish its significance to you (why is it an important issue to you and how familiar are you with the issue?).
2. Your final essay will require use of five sources. At least three of these must be scholarly journal articles (in addition to the three scholarly articles, you may use other material – for example, books, government documents and reports, materials from archives like maps or briefing notes, legal cases, interviews, etc.). For this assignment, provide a short overview of three journal articles AND explain why the sources are pertinent and credible for your purposes. Be sure to provide correct citations - the correct MLA or APA citation - for each source. This assignment should not exceed three pages (short paragraph outlining your topic for Part 1, three short paragraphs outlining each source for Part 2).

Note: Your topic and/or sources might well change over the term. That is fine. This exercise demonstrates your ability to conduct formal research around a topic. However, I strongly suggest focusing on something earlier in the term so you maximize the time you can devote to reading the research material you gather.

Source Evaluation Grading

An 'A' range grade assignment will frame an open-ended question, itemize credible source material (with good content analyses) and provide correct documentation.

A 'B' range grade will frame an open-ended question, itemized credible source material with adequate content analyses) and slight mistakes in documentation.

A 'C' level grade assignment will frame a thesis rather than a question; have mostly credible sources, but weak content analysis.

A 'D' level grade assignment will frame a thesis and lack credible source material or otherwise not fulfil the assignment requirements.

An 'F' will be recorded for any assignment not submitted.

3. Presentations

Pick an issue of your choice and identify your target audience. Present your topic by explaining various perspectives. Rather than presenting the issue as having two sides (those for or against something), explain more than two points of view, showing the complexity of the issue. Finally, respond to the conversation with your own "I say" view. This should be presented as the view you will formulate as a thesis in your final essay.

Not to exceed 10 minutes. Presentations that exceed the allotted time are not allowed to finish.

Presentation Grading:

PRESENCE	5	4	3	2	1
-----------------	----------	----------	----------	----------	----------

-body language & eye contact

-uses allotted time

-poise

-spoken, not read

LANGUAGE SKILLS	5	4	3	2	1
------------------------	----------	----------	----------	----------	----------

-correct usage

-appropriate vocabulary and grammar

-understandable (rhythm, intonation, accent)

-spoken loud enough to hear easily

ORGANIZATION 5 4 3 2 1

- clear objectives
- logical structure
- signposting

MASTERY OF THE SUBJECT 5 4 3 2 1

- overview of other views
- frames a thesis
- able to answer questions

TOTAL GRADE _____ / 20

4. Peer Editing

This assignment requires the completion of a peer editing worksheet (to be handed out in class later in the term). You will exchange drafts with an assigned partner and read through your partner's essay carefully.

Peer Editing Grading:

A grade for worksheets that correct sentence/style/citation errors and offer substantive comments on your partner's essay

B grade for complete worksheet but without specific suggestions

F grade for no peer edit submission

5. Final Essay

Ideally this would build on the presentation, but you are welcome to shift or change focus. Your essay should be approx. five pages in length and include use of five pertinent sources – three of which must be scholarly articles. Please use correct APA or MLA citation. The paper should demonstrate correct essay structure and be argumentative in focus and tone. You are presenting views on a topic and defining your perspective or view in relation to the research you've been reading. The challenge for content marks is to come up with an original thesis. You do not want to just replicate information or merely put forward arguments already made in the published work you find.

Essay Grading:

An "A" level grade marks an assignment that anticipates and responds to possible reader questions (counterarguments), uses a wide range of supporting evidence, engages the reader in a provocative conversation, provides unexpected insights (is original), and typically uses language with outstanding facility.

A "B" level grade highlights a strong example of college writing and thinking. In addition to meeting the "C" level requirements, such an essay goes further in some way(s): it demonstrates some insight into the "gray areas" of the assignment, reads smoothly at both the sentence and paragraph levels, and/or exhibits a personal "voice" or style. It has no sentence-level errors.

A "C" level grade denotes average college-level writing and achievement. The writing is a competent response to the assignment: it meets, to some degree, all the assignment requirements, and demonstrates that the author has put significant time and effort into communicating his/her ideas. It moves from point to point in an orderly fashion; sentence-level errors do not significantly prevent comprehension. Essays that do not meet these criteria will not earn a "C."

"D" level essays do not meet the basic expectations of the assignment.

"F" level grades are assigned to essays that are not completed

Students registered with the Centre for Accessible Learning (CAL) who complete quizzes, tests, and exams with academic accommodations have booking procedures and deadlines with CAL where advanced notice is required. Deadlines can be reviewed on the CAL exams page. <https://camosun.ca/services/academic-supports/accessible-learning/academic-accommodations-exams>

COURSE GUIDELINES & EXPECTATIONS

Keep up with the readings. Remember that we are not just reading the texts assigned, but studying them, so come to class prepared. Take reading/lecture notes so you can review material for the quizzes.

Please refrain from texting in class and talking out of turn as these can be distracting. Constant tardiness, leaving class early without permission, etc., can be equally distracting and disrespectful to your instructor and peers in class.

While I make every effort to check email regularly, I would appreciate at least 48 hours to respond to questions/problems. Please don't presume that I can respond to your questions or concerns if you only contact me the day before. I do not respond on weekends/evenings. Again, begin work on assignments early so you can clarify any issues well in advance of the due date.

In cases of academic misconduct, students will receive an F on the assignment and may also be subject to additional college sanctions. Students will respect the standards of academic integrity, including but not limited to, refraining from plagiarism, cheating, or copying someone else's work.

All assignments should be fully prepared by the student. Developing strong competencies in the skills associated with this course, from student-based brainstorming to project development, will prepare you for success in your degree pathway and career. Therefore, please note the use of generative AI tools to complete any aspect of assignments for this course are not permitted and will be treated as plagiarism. If you have questions about what constitutes a violation of this statement, please contact me.

All assignments are to be submitted in 12-point, Times New Roman. Submissions must follow the format of MLA or APA style.

Assignments are due on the dates/times specified. Late assignments will not receive comments but will be assigned a grade. Assignments handed in late are docked 10% per day till the fourth day (including weekends) at which point the assignment will receive an F grade.

Assignment Grading:

There are grading rubrics applied for each required submission. This is a general guideline.

A "C" level grade denotes average college-level writing and achievement. The writing is a competent response to the assignment: it meets, to some degree, all the assignment requirements, and demonstrates that the author has put significant time and effort into communicating his/her ideas. It moves from point to point in an orderly fashion; sentence-level errors do not significantly prevent comprehension. Essays that do not meet these criteria will not earn a "C."

A "B" level grade highlights a strong example of college writing and thinking. In addition to meeting the "C" level requirements, such an essay goes further in some way(s): it demonstrates some insight into the "gray areas" of the assignment, reads smoothly at both the sentence and paragraph levels, and/or exhibits a personal "voice" or style. It has no sentence-level errors.

An "A" level grade marks an assignment that anticipates and responds to possible reader questions, uses a wide range of supporting evidence, engages the reader in a provocative conversation, provides unexpected insights, and/or uses language with outstanding facility.

"D" and "F" level assignments do not meet the basic expectations of the assignment.
