COURSE GUIDELINES & EXPECTATIONS

There are multiple components to this course:

Lectures: I am choosing to structure this course along four themes: the physical characteristics of the province, the primary economic sectors and associated politics, the cultural past and present, and the social norms that are uniquely British Columbian. Each week there will be a traditional two-hour lecture, normally on Tuesdays, and Thursdays will often be in-class group activities pertaining to the lecture material.

Assignments: There are ten assignments in the course all of which focus on specific facets of each of the province. You will be given a week to complete a series of questions that pertain to a topic or a locale. Computer access will be required for most of the assignments as you will be referencing a variety of websites and data sources.

Pick-a-Town-Any-Town Project: You will be asked to choose a town in British Columbia and prepare an electronic presentation summarizing its attributes - physical, economic, political, and the social personality of your town.

Readings: In this course, I would like to introduce you to the scholarship found in BC Studies: The British Columbia Quarterly. I will ask you to read five articles over the course of the term – most of them long and involved – that present scholarly research and perspectives on British Columbia. These readings will be examinable, and I will ask you to synthesize and comment on them through external software.

Tests: There will be three tests this term, the first one on Thursday, October 5th, the second on Thursday, November 16th, and the third during the Camosun College exam week. Each test will have a selection of short-answer, true or false, multiple-choice, and short essay-type questions.
