COURSE GUIDELINES & EXPECTATIONS

Peter Drucker, a management writer and practitioner, observed that "business firms have only two major functions - innovation and marketing." This course explores what marketing is and how it is carried out in business firms and other types of organizations. It also examines the role marketing plays in influencing an organization’s innovative efforts. The point of view expressed in the course is that the most successful organizations over the long term are those that are determined to find the right customers and serve the needs of these customers well. The primary task of marketing is to help firms select the best customers and then satisfy their needs/wants at a profit.

MARK 110 is designed to help those going into non-marketing fields by providing a good understanding of the role marketing plays in organizations and the relationship it has with other business functions. It is also intended to give a solid grounding in marketing basics for students who want to pursue more advanced marketing studies.

This is a demanding course. However, it can be a lot of fun too. Please read assigned chapters and take part in the course discussions. Feel free to provide your input by asking questions and contributing from your experience.

Your attendance in class is expected.

USE OF GENERATIVE ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (GENAI) TOOLS

This is specifically about GenAI tools (e.g., ChatGPT, Bing Chat, etc.) but applies to using any artificial intelligence technology in this class. GenAI tools are available to students in this course. The purpose of this section is to outline the guidelines for using GenAI tools in this course and to specify the restrictions on its use.

- Students may choose to use GenAI tools to assist with understanding course concepts, summarizing lectures, or writing assistance, but the final product must be their own original work. It is essential that students recognize the importance of generating their ideas and thoughts to enhance their critical thinking, problem-solving, and decision-making skills. Therefore, the use of GenAI tools should be seen as a supportive tool, rather than a replacement for students' ideas and efforts.
- Students are responsible for understanding the limitations and potential biases of GenAI tools and for critically evaluating their output.
- Students are responsible for any output produced, and are ultimately accountable for the work they submit.
- Students must document and be transparent about their use of GenAI tools. The documentation should accompany each assignment and include what tool(s) were used, how they were used, and how the results were incorporated into the submitted work. Any content produced with the support of a GenAI tool must be cited appropriately, following APA format.
- Students are not permitted to use GenAI tools to complete quizzes or exams. Any use of GenAI tools for such purposes will be considered academic dishonesty and will result in appropriate action being taken, in line with the College's academic integrity policies.
