NOTES ON ASSESSMENTS:

Assignment Instructions

Online Discussions (Questions posted at the end of each unit)

For your on line discussions you will be placed in a group of approximately 6 of your peers. As a group, you are responsible to respond to the week's discussion questions. Your participation online will build on the readings by drawing out the details that you can apply to your own work context. Sharing your own reaction to the material with other in the class will bring multiple points of view and experiences "in the field" that will allow you to continue learning beyond the print resources. Give the level of effort expected from you in the online forum and the anticipated learning that will result, this part of the course will contribute over one-third to your final grade. Here's what you need to do each week:

- 1) In the first week, by the end of the day on Wednesday, each of you should aim to have posted at least one initial response to the question. Your initial responses must be thoughtful and thorough, between 250 – 350 words for each question posed. It is very important that your response is not just your own opinion and also that your response is not just "lifted" from other sources. You need to back up your initial response by referring to at least three cited sources, found through research (including the course materials and on line or print sources) – avoid Wikipedia and other secondary sources.
- 2) Review the marking rubrics for the online discussions before you get started so you will know what is expected in terms of content, sources and engagement. There are two rubrics. One for your self-assessment and the other that the instructor uses to compare your own evaluation to what is expected in terms of the assignment.
- 3) You can then begin to respond to the initial responses of other members of your group and, in so doing, start building a —thread or discussion of connected thoughts related to the topic. You can also add to your own initial response. Having an actual DISCUSSION with your peers is how you earn marks beyond marks for your initial posting.
- 4) Individually, you should be aiming at a minimum of four postings (in addition to your initial posting) during each week, which are substantive and contribute to the discussion. Don't just cut and paste long passages into your posts – better to summarize and give the link to the full version, in most cases.
- 5) By end of the day on Sunday (before the discussion closes), you can begin to wrap up your discussions.

On completion of each discussion, you are to perform a "SELF

ASSESSMENT" of your discussion. This is due by Monday night. There is a self-assessment for each discussion found under the quizzes tab. Your self assessment is to be completed by the following Monday night. Your instructor will review your self-assessments and may point out any discrepancies they see in what you have assessed yourself at to what you actually produced in the discussion. Note the instructors rubric also posted in week one.

- 7) The self-assessment is an opportunity for you to reflect on your work and assess your own efforts in terms of substance and analysis. I offer this form of evaluation in some of my classes as a form of student centered, reflective and more empowering means of self and academic development. This approach is more in line with my own Indigenous worldview and its application to teaching and learning. I do review each of your contributions and will compare my review with your own assessments and if a correction is needed will make suggestions and an adjustment. You may choose not to complete the self-assessment, in which case I will complete it for you. Not to penalize but to help guide your good work.

B) Environmental Scan– Individual or Pairs Assignment

Note you may work individually or with someone who is assigned to your small discussion group for this assignment.

Purpose: To learn how to develop an environmental scan to provide context and evidence for decisions and plans in an organization.

Background:

It is first of all important to note that there are a variety of environmental scans and that if you are asked to assist in writing a scan in your career, you should always identify the components and framework the organization has chosen to adopt before beginning to write.

Typically, though, an environmental scan in a public organization attempts to identify and highlight some key trends and issues on the horizon that will likely influence the decision making process and governing environment of the organization. To ensure that all issues are addressed, many organizations tend to organize their environmental scan in the following manner (STEEP):

- Socio-cultural trends and issues                      Technological trends and issues
- Economic trends and issues
- Environmental trends and issues
- Political trends and issues

Assignment:

- Write an environmental scan for either one of the federal, provincial, local, or aboriginal levels of government.
  - Target audience – you are a civil servant presenting the environmental scan to the political decision makers in the organization.
  - Should you wish to focus on a particular department, please obtain permission from me before writing the environmental scan.
- Organization –Use the STEEP format outlined above to complete this assignment.
- Length – the assignment should be approximately 8 pages (no longer) not including references, or you will lose marks.
- Format –prepare the scan as a professional document suitable to present to a Director or Manager.
- Include a minimum of five credible sources to support your analysis.
- Use APA formatting, citation and referencing style.
- The level of writing should be geared toward someone who is intelligent but does not have specialized expertise. Concepts should be explained in simple language and avoid using jargon.
- Focus on identifying trends, not necessarily issues. This is a difficult task. Focus on what might stay the same, increase, decrease, improve, or get worse.
- It is important to identify a trend and then address how the trend will likely impact the organization.

If you have any questions, please let me know.

If you have a concern about a grade you have received for an evaluation, please come and see me as soon as possible. Refer to the Grade Review and Appeals policy for more information.
