2. Intended Learning Outcomes

Through reading textbooks, secondary source articles and primary source materials, listening to faculty lectures, participating in seminars, writing papers, making presentations, and performing tests, students will:

1. gain an understanding of critical themes, events, and issues in the construction of Canada since 1867
2. explore Native-European relations, relations between French and English Canadians, and between them and other ethnic groups
3. examine political challenges and changes
4. explore the development of national consciousness, the legacy of British colonial control and its transformation
5. examine Canadian-American relations and Canada's place in the world, and its participation in wars
6. evaluate economic, cultural and social development
7. reassess and challenge traditional and existing perspectives on critical events and issues of this period

By the end of the course, through exposure to the above materials and ideas, students should:

1. be able to think critically about historical issues and writing by evaluating the arguments put forward by historians, weighing the evidence they present, and making judgments about the strength of their arguments
2. have gained an appreciation of history as a distinct academic discipline, understanding its unique outlook, scope and methods and what distinguishes history from other disciplines
3. be able to use history to confront the issues of today's world, establishing a context for the present and comprehending the accomplishments, failures, tensions, and issues of the present era
4. have developed skills in researching, writing, and oral communication

Students are expected to attend all classes, read all assigned material and be prepared to discuss readings in class. It is the student's responsibility to ensure assignments are handed to the instructor on or before the due date. Students are encouraged to ask questions and to meet with the instructor to discuss assignments or class material or to seek clarification and direction.

In order to meet the educational needs of students, the instructor reserves the right to change the material covered in this class.

3. Required Materials

Texts

Francis, R. Douglas, Richard Jones, Donald B. Smith. Destinies: Canadian History Since Confederation, 4th edition. Toronto: Harcourt Canada, 2000.

Reading Package, History 112: Post-Confederation Canada (available at the Lansdowne Campus Book Store)

4. Course Content and Schedule

Lectures and Films

Lectures and films will be scheduled for two 50 minute blocks each day. Lectures will contextualize or provide additional material to that contained in the course readings. Students are expected to attend lectures and will be examined on their contents.

Textbooks

Destinies is the general text for the course. Quickly skim each chapter to get an understanding of the time line and big picture. Take notes on themes covered in lectures and seminars. The Reading Package will be used for seminars and all assigned seminar readings are compulsory.

Seminars

The class will spend at least 50 minutes each day discussing course readings. Attendance is compulsory. Seminars require interaction with the group; they cannot be "made up." Students who miss more than three seminars will lose their entire participation mark. Students will be evaluated for quantity and quality of participation as well as attendance.

Students are responsible for reading the assigned articles before the seminar. As well as being prepared to discuss any assigned questions, students must provide at least one question of their own for each seminar. Questions should be "big picture" questions which draw the readings together or focus on problems with interpretations of historical data. For example, two authors might disagree on how to interpret a process or event. Your question would point out this inconsistency and focus attention on why that might be so. A question might also pull together the common theme(s) of the seminar readings and ask how each author deals with the theme and why s/he interprets the evidence as s/he does.

Examinations

There will be one mid term examination held in class on May 28 and a final examination held during the formal examination period of June 23 to 25, 2003. Exams will consist of short answer questions, identify and give the significance questions, and essay questions. The best way to study and ready yourself for exams is to prepare for seminars, attend lectures, and read the relevant section or chapter in your textbook.

Written Assignments

Students must complete two written assignments of between 800 and 1000 words (excluding footnotes and bibliography): one critical article review and one primary source document analysis. The article critiqued will be chosen from one of the first four seminars. Instructions for both assignments and a list of suggested primary sources are appended to this document and will be discussed at the first seminar.

Students should note that all essays will be marked for grammar, clarity of writing, organization, content, and analysis. Essays must be double-spaced, on one side of the page only, and should have a margin of at least one inch on both sides of the text. You should keep a photocopy of each essay you submit until your final grade has been posted.

Plagiarism is a form of cheating and is a serious academic offence which will result in a grade of 0 for the paper and can result in failure of the course. Plagiarism is theft of another scholar's work. Plagiarism is easy to avoid provided that you acknowledge all scholarly material that is not your own work. You must do all your own research, you may not quote from or use ideas from other people's work without acknowledging them in a citation, you may not submit for this course a paper you have submitted for another, you may not submit on your own behalf a paper written by another person, and you may not cut and paste information from internet sources. As students will have the opportunity to ask questions about plagiarism in class, the instructor will accept no excuses if the student does plagiarize.

Essays should be handed to the instructor in class on the due date. Marks will be deducted for lateness at a rate of 4 % for every business day that the essay is overdue. If your essay is late because of illness please submit a note from a health practitioner. No assignments will be accepted after the final class.
