COMM 290 • Independent Studies

Calendar description

1–6 credits

With departmental approval, students carry out a plan of studies not available through regular college courses. Content, approach, methodology, and evaluation is determined in consultation between student and instructor. The first course is COMM 290, then COMM 292, etc. Credit is awarded individually as determined by Department Chair and Dean.

Prerequisites

Completion of the first full year of ACP

Notes

1. Credit value will be variable within the range of one to six, based on normal course workload criteria. Credit value will be identified by using an alphabetic code. 290A denotes one credit, 290B denotes two credits etc.
2. Upon completion, grades will be assigned according to the standard departmental letter grade system and submitted to data management by the appropriate instructor.
3. All regular administrative procedures will apply to independent study courses including fee assessment, withdrawal dates, incomplete dates etc.
4. Three credit independent studies may be used to meet the need for an elective in academic term four.
5. Six credit independent studies can potentially take the place of a co-op work term.
6. Aside from co-op ACP doesn't permit payment to students for courses that are part of the program.
7. If the course is intended to be used in place of a co-op work term there are specific criteria:
 - It must be communication / media industry related
 - It must include a mentorship relationship with media / communication professional(s).
 - Learning outcomes must be well defined and agreed upon by student and instructor.
 - The course needs to be 6 credits (COMM 290F) and there must be a substantial number of hours spent on the course. (170 hours) or equivalent of about 5 weeks of full time work.
 - There must be in-progress check-ins with instructor (remember that instructors are generally not available in July and August.)
 - Students must apply to the co-op exceptions committee to have the course approved as equivalent to a work term.

Procedure

1. Student approaches an instructor with a request to take an independent study course.
 2. Student/Instructor define the project and fill out the proposal form (attached) Both sign the agreement, then submit it to the department chair for approval
 3. Chair signs the agreement and forwards it to the Dean of Arts & Science
 4. Dean signs the document and returns to Chair. Instructor gives copies of the agreement to the student and registration.
 5. Chair contacts registration to arrange for the course
 6. Student registers and pays the course fee
