Calendar Description:

This course introduces students to qualitative research and indigenous research methodologies, methods, and techniques. It provide students with relevant research knowledge, strategies, skills, and tools to do their own research in, and evaluate existing research on, First Nations communities. Hands-on experience is emphasized.

EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Students will be able to

- 1. Assess the relevance and limitations of existing sociological research concepts, methods and techniques to researching First Nations communities and issues.
- 2. Develop questionnaires and interview schedules that are appropriate to First Nations research respondents and informants.
- 3. Evaluate the importance of archival material, research reports, statistical data, and oral history to the research needs of First Nations communities.
- 4. Successfully carry out observations and in-depth interviews in Aboriginal communities.
- 5. Create workable research proposals focusing on First Nations communities and/or issues.

COURSE ORGANIZATION:

The course will integrate instructor's interactive presentations, students' group/class discussions, oral presentations, essay-type examinations, guest speakers, and video presentations to facilitate students active interaction with and enhance their understanding of the course material.

REQUIRED READINGS:

Stringer, E.

1999. Action Research. Thousand Oaks, California: Sage Publications.

Leedy, Paul D. and Jeanne Ellis Ormrod

GROUP/CLASS DISCUSSIONS (30%):

The intentions of this aspect of the course are to engage the class in constructive discussions of the challenges of doing research in First Nations' communities/issues, and provide students with hands-on experience in developing feasible research proposals.

GROUP DISCUSSIONS

The group discussions focus on a) the review questions provided by the instructor based on those chapters designated for group discussion in the course schedule, and b) designated stages of research proposal development.

- a) In groups of three or four discuss the review questions thoroughly. Each group is to come up with 1) one major PROBLEM in the specified that the review questions fail to address and 2) formulate the problem into one QUESTION. Write the problem and the question on a piece of paper with the list of your group members and submit to the instructor.
- b) In your proposal groups discuss the development proposal stage indicated in the schedule. Write a synopsis of the specified proposal stage based on your research topic. Submit it to the instructor with a list of the names of your group members for grading.

CLASS DISCUSSIONS

The questions that the various groups generate will constitute the core of class discussions. In the class discussions each group is required to provide rationale for and defend the questions it creates. Evaluation of group discussions will be based on the questions created, supported and defended.

INTERACTIVE LECTURE:

This is the instructor's presentation on selected topics. Students are encouraged to ask questions, make comments and respond to questions during the presentation process.

ORAL PRESENTATION (10%) AND WRITTEN RESEARCH PROPOSAL (20%):

Get two or three partners from the class and come up with a relevant topic that focuses on a relevant issue in a specific First Nations' community for your oral presentation and research proposal.

The projects involve a collaborative work requiring students to join together with others in teams of not less than 3 and not more than 4. Each team will be required to make an oral presentation and develop the presentation into a written research proposal. Emphasis should be placed on a coherent, logical argument that integrates concepts, theory and empirical information. A clear presentation and critical thinking will also be rewarded. The presentation must be approximately 15 minutes and the length of the research proposal may range between 5 and 10 double-spaced typewritten pages. Grades for oral presentation and written report will be group-based. Students who prefer individual grades should provide a convincing reason for that and should discuss it with the instructor before the deadline for the submission of the term paper.

The oral presentation and written research proposal must address the following:

- Title
- Introducing the study: the problem background
- Stating the problem
- Formulating the research questions and thesis/hypotheses
- Providing rationale
- Stating the limitations
- Providing definitions
- Doing/writing a literature review
- Constructing the methodology or research design
- Discussing ethical implications of the research
- References/Bibliography
- Appendices

The due date of the written report is Friday December 10, 2003. You lose marks for late submission of report--2 marks a day.

FINAL EXAMINATION: ESSAY-TYPE:

The instructor will give you FIVE study questions based on the required readings, group/class discussions, student oral presentations, and interactive lectures, one week before the final examination day. On the examination day two of the questions will be selected for you and you will be required to answer ANY ONE of them in 60 minutes. Note that this is an essay exam and emphasis should be placed on a coherent, logical argument that integrates concepts, theory and empirical information. A clear presentation and critical thinking will also be rewarded

EVALUATION FRAMEWORK:

Evaluation will be based on one in-class essay-type final examination, group/class discussions, oral presentations and a research proposal. All the components of the evaluation will be graded on the basis of their sociological quality and relevance to First Nations communities.

Group/Class Discussions	30%
Oral Presentation	10%
Research Proposal	30%
Final Examination	30%

NOTE: To attain a passing grade, students must complete all the evaluation components of the course.
