85-89	A		8
80-84	A-		7
77-79	B+	Very good (B+), good (B), and solid (B-) performance. Normally achieved by the largest	6 number of students, these grades indicate a good grasp of the subject matter or an excellent grasp in one area balanced with a satisfactory grasp in the other area(s).

73-76	B		5
70-72	B-		4
65-69	C+	Satisfactory (C+) or minimally satisfactory (C) performance. These grades indicate a satisfactory (only) performance and knowledge of the subject matter.	3

Assignments

Assignments are due on the dates/times specified – at the beginning of class. No late assignments are accepted save for verifiable medical emergencies. Quizzes cannot be made up (i.e missed quizzes = F on the quiz in question). Note that problems with software and printing will NOT be accepted as reasons for extensions.

All assignments are to be submitted in 12-point, Times New Roman. Submissions must follow MLA style.

You must complete ALL assignments to earn a "C" or higher in this course.

Guidelines for essay grades:

We presume correctness and fluency in your writing. Your instructor evaluates essays and makes suggestions for improvements in organization, use of evidence, critical thinking, and style.

Merely fulfilling the basic requirements for an assignment, and doing so in a competent, reasonable manner is generally only enough for a grade in the 'B' range. 'A' grades will only be awarded when work demonstrates notable excellence. There is no difference in other words, between an 'A' and a 'B' paper save on matters of content. Both are free of sentence-level issues.

This is not a grammar course – again, we assume mechanical correctness in your writing.

Grades are administered as letter grades only. A "C" level grade denotes average college-level writing and achievement. The writing is a competent response to the assignment: it meets, to some degree, all the assignment requirements, and demonstrates that the author has put significant time and effort into communicating his/her ideas. It moves from point to point in an orderly fashion; sentence-level errors do not significantly prevent comprehension. Essays that do not meet these criteria will not earn a "C."

A "B" level grade highlights a strong example of college writing and thinking. In addition to meeting the "C" level requirements, such an essay goes further in some way(s): it demonstrates some insight into the "gray areas" of the assignment, reads smoothly at both the sentence and paragraph levels, and/or exhibits a personal "voice" or style. It has no sentence-level errors.

An "A" level grade marks an assignment that anticipates and responds to possible reader questions, uses a wide range of supporting evidence, engages the reader in a provocative conversation, provides unexpected insights, and/or uses language with outstanding facility.

"D" and "F" level assignments do not meet the basic expectations of the assignment.

Academic Honesty

In cases of academic misconduct, students will receive an F on the assignment and may also be subject to additional college sanctions. Students will respect the standards of academic integrity. In addition to plagiarism, academic dishonesty include but are not limited to:

Cheating: Copying from another student or using unauthorized aids or persons during an examination.

Falsification: Making up fictitious information and presenting it as factual or altering records for the purpose of misrepresentation. Facilitation: Helping another student to cheat, plagiarize, or falsify.

Plagiarism means using the exact words, opinions, or factual information from another source without giving that source credit. Writers give credit through the use of accepted documentation styles, such as parenthetical citation, footnotes, etc. A simple listing of books, articles, and websites is not sufficient. Student writers are often confused as to what should be cited. Some think that only direct quotations need to be credited. While direct quotations do need citations, so do paraphrases and summaries of opinions or factual information formerly unknown to the writer or which the writer did not discover. Exceptions to this include factual information which can be obtained from a variety of sources, the writer's own insights or common knowledge. What constitutes common knowledge can sometimes be unclear; what is common knowledge for one audience may not be so for another. In such situations, it is helpful to keep the reader in mind and to think of citations as being "reader friendly." If in doubt, provide the citation(s).

E-mail:

I try to respond to messages in a timely fashion, but since I receive dozens of messages each day, I ask that you use e-mail prudently and expect at least 48 hours for a reply. I usually do not respond to emails at the end of the day or on weekends.

Here are some guidelines:

DO NOT EMAIL ASSIGNMENTS.

Announcements, schedule changes, and corrections to/deviations from the course outline and calendar are made in class – it is your responsibility to keep tabs on classes. I do not respond to emails that query me about missed material.

Electronic Devices

No devices (phones, electronic dictionaries, tablets, laptops, etc.) may be used in class.
