Growing up in a railway family, I spent my childhood moving around, from Niagara Falls to Fort Erie, Sarnia, and finally, Winnipeg. I've also lived in Vancouver, Toronto, and Rome, Italy. I completed my Bachelor's degree at the University of Winnipeg, followed by a Master of Arts from Simon Fraser University and Ph.D. from the University of Victoria.

I have taught History and Religion at four colleges and universities and published research on a wide range of topics, including immigration, multiculturalism, sport, gender, religion, and ethnic food. My wife is from Italy and we are parents of a 10-year-old girl and ~~threat to the free world~~ 4-year-old boy.

An understanding of the world's religious traditions, particularly of their similarities and differences, is critical to the development of a person's worldview and grasp of their place in the diverse human landscape. I am looking forward to exploring Religions of the East together this semester.

2. Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course a student will be able to:

1. Explain the contexts/historical settings in which Hinduism, Buddhism, Sikhism, Chinese religions, and Shintoism arose.
2. List major dates, events, and places central to each.
3. Describe the historical linkage/relationships among them.
4. Summarize their major beliefs, teachings, ideals, and practices.
5. Explain variations/splits/divisions in each tradition.
6. Analyze their similarities/differences.
7. Compare/contrast each religion's view of the others.
8. Evaluate their relationship to and impact on the world today.

3. Required Materials

(a) Texts

1. Roy C. Amore, Amir Hussain, and Willard G. Oxtoby, A Concise Introduction to World Religions, 4th ed.

4. Course Content and Schedule

Lectures: The lectures will appear on D2L course site as video and/or audio PowerPoint files every Wednesday at 11:30 am

Seminars: Each week, students must upload their seminar contribution every Thursday before 11:59 pm (midnight). They will respond to others' posts before the next evening at 11:59 pm (midnight).

The lectures aim to follow a similar structure to the textbook. It should also be noted that the course delivery format is asynchronous, meaning that it is not in real time. However, "visits" from local religious leaders may take place live, in which case they will be recorded for students who wish to view them at a later time.

Read actively the assigned textbook readings for each lecture, ideally having guide questions beside you (the question that you consider as you read the material or the ones provided in the textbook), and always be aware of the major themes of each chapter. These are listed in the textbook on the first page of every chapter. Students who do the required readings each week and view the lectures will gain a stronger understanding of western world religions, be more likely to enjoy the course, and be well positioned for success.

As mentioned, on certain occasions during the semester, leaders from our local religious communities (i.e. a Buddhist priest) may "visit" the class for an online presentation. These are often a highlight of the course because they generate interactive and personable discussions with a practicing expert in the faith. As such engagements can be arranged, the lecture schedule and content will change accordingly.

Detailed Instructions about the Seminars

The seminar component of the course is critically important to the student (and instructor) learning experience, which is reflected in its weighting as 30 percent of your final grade. During the seminars, you will discuss and sometimes debate the assigned seminar materials. These are mostly based on the textbook chapters, sometimes in addition to other sources (eg. Scripture excerpts) made available on D2L

As part of your seminar preparedness, I strongly recommend that you first read the preset questions on D2L and then explore the readings themselves.

My role in the online seminar discussions is primarily as an observer and occasional moderator, if required. I read and thoughtfully consider every post and might contribute my own comments from time to time.

General Seminar Format: The Seminar includes the following

- a) Your own reaction to that week's readings (i.e. What did you learn? What surprised you? What unanswered questions do you now have about this religious tradition?
- b) Respond to 2 of the pre-set questions on D2L. This is done at the same time as a)
- c) The following night: Respond to 2 other students' threads.

*Students who miss three or more semesters will forfeit their entire participation grade.

Order of Participation:

All postings should be made in the “Discussion” link for that day’s webpage (On the D2L Course Page, Go to My Tools → Content → Select the Week on the left (eg. Week 1) You will see a Seminar Discussions link further down the page). Your first day’s postings should start a thread; the second day’s postings (your responses) should be made on other students’ threads.

Thursday before 11:59pm (midnight)

1. Contribute your initial 100-word “first impressions” post. Some suggested questions to guide your response: What did you learn? What surprised you? How is the story, idea, value, claim, belief or practice in this passage similar or different to those in other religious traditions? What questions do you have?
2. Then answer 2 of the prescribed questions I’ve provided on D2L. Each one must be a minimum of 50 words

Friday before 11:59pm (midnight)

3. React/add to 2 other students’ threads from the day before. Your response can be to their initial “first impressions” post and/or to their answers to the prescribed questions. Each one must be a minimum of 50 words

What I want to see

In your responses, I need to see thoughtful consideration of the scriptures and other sources you read, communicated effectively to the other students.

You are welcome to mention what was interesting, clear or unanswered, and what made (or did not make sense) to you. Don’t worry: if something doesn’t seem to make sense to you, there are probably other students feeling the same way. Everyone is on a learning path here. In your posts, feel free to include your own questions for other students, as long as they relate to the material. Great dialogue and debate always starts with a thought-provoking question. “Comparison” is one of the highest forms of analysis. I strongly encourage you to look for similarities and differences in the great Eastern religious traditions, and perhaps also consider how they compare and contrast to the western secular society in which most of us live. As we move further into the semester, you will be better able to compare themes in one religious tradition (eg. the afterlife/lives, nature, reality and illusion, views on food, the nature of the Divine, principles to live by, good and evil, etc.) with ones we’ve already studied.

What I do not want to see

I do not want to see mere congratulatory responses to other students’ contributions, such as “Josh, you did a great job and clarified everything for me.” This is a poor attempt at participation, akin to a Facebook “like.” The result will be a very poor grade. Make sure that you write an informed response that adds richness to the discussion or debate. It’s okay to compliment someone (and right so, because many of you have fascinating things to say!), but make sure to follow up your virtual high-five with your own contribution. Also, try to avoid “going into the weeds,” so to speak. Keep on topic as much as possible. It is okay to meld some personal experience into your postings, but first speak to the assigned reading material. For your participation mark, you are assessed primarily on the quality of your interpretations and grasp of the course readings.

(a) Assignments (none)

- (b) Online Tests – In the span of fourteen weeks, REL 102 covers a remarkable number of religions and their traditions, philosophies, and practices. To simplify this venture, the course material is organized into four online tests, spread across the semester schedule.

Each test consists of

- i) Short Answer and Multiple Choice questions, which will require you to revisit your lecture notes and textbook readings.
- ii) Reflection and Application Long Answer Questions. The purpose of these paragraph-style inquiries is to encourage the student to go well beyond identifying and reciting the course material to apply their growing understanding of Eastern world religions. More specifically, these questions will test your knowledge of the key religious concepts, practices, and systems by asking you to compare and contrast them or imagine how followers of a tradition will live and respond in certain contexts.

- (c) Exams— This is no mid-term exam or final exam in REL 102

*An exception for a missed or late assignment or seminar contributions may require a medical certificate.
