Hands-on Sessions

There will be 2 hands-on sessions scheduled during the winter term. During these sessions, students will have an opportunity to mix materials and discuss restorative dentistry. For students with limited dental experience, these sessions are valuable.

Lecture Component: General Dentistry

Classroom sessions are scheduled in which the various disciplines of general dentistry will be presented and discussed. There will be an emphasis on the tools and materials used in general dentistry as well as the terminology that applies to various dental procedures.

Dental Materials

This is a self-paced course. There will be selected readings assigned from the required textbook, Clinical Aspects of Dental Material 3rd ed. You are expected to know the material from these readings.

Self-paced courses require discipline. It is suggested you break these reading up into small amounts and make study notes as you progress. Note that the first few chapters are more technically demanding and may require more time.

Self-paced courses allow for greater learner flexibility and increased learner responsibility. You are responsible for completing the appropriate modules before the scheduled quizzes.
