2. Course Description & Intended Learning Outcomes

The student will examine and explore current and emerging theories and perspectives that explain human growth and development from conception to early childhood. Students will begin to reflect on their image of children and families through multiple lenses, including an introduction to Indigenous worldviews, to broaden their thinking about children and their growth. The impact of colonization and the residential school experience is explored to support decolonization and reconciliation. Theoretical knowledge will be considered in connection to relationship building with children and families and early childhood practice.

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- describe and use various theories and perspectives on children's growth and development to explain how early influences may impact children's learning and well-being.
- Demonstrate how generations of residential schools and on-going colonization has impacted parenting, children's growth and development and dominant beliefs and perspectives on Indigenous families and communities.
- examine their own beliefs and perspectives on children's development and how that might influence their practice.
- develop pedagogical narrations to examine children's skills and abilities as well as their own practice.
