Introduction to Indigenous Peoples: TELFIN TFE WILNEW
2020F

COURSE OUTLINE

TELFIN TFE WILNEW, is a SENĆOTEN phrase meaning “Understanding Indigenous People.” This unique, award-winning course is intended for students unfamiliar with Indigenous world-views. Participants will learn from Indigenous people about Indigenous worldviews and colonization through video, audio interviews, radio shows and scholarly articles. The purpose of the course is to dispel stereotypes and myths, to enable learners to understand the experience of Aboriginal peoples in a Canadian context, and to equip them with the knowledge and skills to begin to interact respectfully with Aboriginal peoples in community and in the workplace. Discussions are conducted in circle format with an Aboriginal facilitator.

Ω Please note: This outline will not be kept indefinitely. It is recommended students keep this outline for their records, especially to assist in transfer credit to post-secondary institutions.

5. Basis of Student Assessment (Weighting)

Note about grading: The assignment descriptions listed below outline the basic criteria by which you will be assessed. In order to receive top marks for your assignments you will need to go above and beyond the expectations described below. You can do this by showing a depth of engagement with the topic that you are writing about.

(a) Attendance (20%)

Active participation is a crucial part of learning and a very important part of this course. Being prepared for discussions includes making sure you are on time, the modules are viewed, readings are done and you are ready to participate. At a minimum you should be able to talk about what you have learned, how it has impacted you and/or connects to your experience of the world. Each of the 4 face-to-face via video meeting is worth 5%.

(b) Online discussion questions (42%)

Each module has a discussion question concluding the section. Posts are your response to the initial question and include any comments and/or questions about the week's modules. Posts should be 2-4 paragraphs. Each of the 14 discussion question posts is worth 3%.

(c) Online discussion responses (8%)

Each student needs to read and respond to at least 2 of their classmate's posts. Responses do not need to be as comprehensive as the discussion posts (a couple of sentences). Each response is worth 4%.

(d) Critical Reflection (30%)

Each student must write a critical reflection for this course. The critical reflection should draw on the course discussions, films, readings, and/or face-to-face sessions.

Each critical reflection can have a short introduction that summarizes what you will be discussing. BUT remember the paper is a critical reflection and NOT summary. Use this opportunity to critically reflect on the course. Critical reflections should be more comprehensive than the discussion posts.

Questions to ask yourself while writing:

1. What was the most significant thing that you learned?
2. Why is it important that you learned this?
3. How will you incorporate your learning into your life?

Critical reflections must be 3-4 typed pages, double spaced, 12 pt. font. You may use any citation style as long as you are consistent throughout the paper. You do not need to provide a title page but ensure that your name and the course is listed on the paper.

The critical reflection is due at the last face-to-face session of the term.

6. Grading System

(If any changes are made to this part, then the Approved Course description must also be changed and sent through the approval process.)

(Mark with "X" in box below to show appropriate approved grading system – see last page of this template.)
