COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is an introduction to the arts of various Indigenous peoples as understood through their worldviews, histories and cultures. We will explore the characteristics of Indigenous art practice, contextualized by the legacies of colonization and by Indigenous concepts of sovereignty and self-determination.

Students will develop a solid understanding of the diversity, vitality and uniqueness of Indigenous arts in Canada. Through a multidisciplinary exploration of Indigenous art practices, students will discover the continuum between traditional and contemporary artistic ideas, motifs, techniques and materials.

Priority will be given to Indigenous voices - scholars, artists, critics and historians. Students are encouraged to use Indigenous research methods.

LEARNING EXPECTATIONS

- Understand and use the concepts, theories, and methods of Indigenous research in the analysis of Indigenous art
- Identify how Indigenous worldview informs Indigenous art practices
- Be aware of the historical and contemporary contexts of Indigenous art
- Display critical engagement with the complex issues of Indigenous art practices
- Identify artistic forms of various Indigenous peoples in their production, presentation and interpretation
- Understand the collective responsibility of knowing about, supporting and fostering Indigenous arts.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Ability to assess and engage with Indigenous art history, art practices and artworks
- Development of critical thinking in the student's on-going understanding of Indigenous Studies
- Capacity, both in verbal and written form, to critically discuss the diversity of Indigenous arts.

LEARNING MATERIAL

In an attempt to respect the orality of Indigenous peoples, the learning materials will include sound recordings, audio-visual documents, web sites as well as texts. Each week, students are presented with two options of learning material. They are required to choose one and write a response to it. These responses will be discussed during a weekly talking circle.

STUDENT ASSESSMENT

ATTENDANCE AND PARTICIPATION – 30%

You will be graded on your attendance, your participation in our weekly discussions and your attention in class.

WRITTEN LEARNING RESPONSES - 20 % DUE: WEEKLY

A learning response is a short write-up (about 400 words) in the form of a journal. Each week, you will respond creatively and critically to one of the proposed learning material: articles, essays, video interviews and presentations. The written learning responses are meant to provide a general discussion of your reflections and synthesis on the learning material. The responses should also contain what you believe are the central theme and main ideas. Learning responses are to be submitted at the beginning of each class.

INDIVIDUAL PRESENTATION – 20% DUE: FEB 11 & 25

For this individual assignment, you will develop a well-researched presentation on an established artist of your choice. You will do research, conduct a one-on-one interview and present the results to the class. Your presentation should focus on the cultural and artistic traditions of the artist's nation, the traditional and current roles of artists in that nation, as well as the specific materials and motifs. Your oral presentation should include at least three examples (photo and/or video) of the work discussed.

FINAL PROJECT & PRESENTATIONS – 30% DUE: APRIL 7 & 14

For this project, you will be working in groups of three. You will become curators of a virtual exhibition of Indigenous art – a group show of three to four artists. This project will include the selection and research of a curatorial theme, the selection of the artists and the artworks to be presented in the exhibition. A curatorial essay (approximately 1,200 to 1,500 words) will present the theme of your exhibition and will explain your choice of the artists and artworks. It will also include short biographies and a bibliography.

You will present your virtual exhibition to the class. Presentations will be 20 minutes long and each of the three students must present. Presentations will take place during the last two classes – April 7 and April 14.

REQUIREMENTS OF WRITTEN ASSIGNMENTS

All written assignments must adhere to an approved citation style, such as MLA or APA, and be consistent. In terms of grading, written assignments will be marked with attention to style, grammar, and spelling.
