CALENDAR DESCRIPTION

Topics covered in this course include description of point defects, diffusion in solids, dislocations, origin of Gibbs phase rule, phase diagrams, properties of non-ferrous materials, first law of thermodynamics, internal energy, second law of thermodynamics, entropy, availability and irreversible processes.

PREREQUISITE(S): None
CO-REQUISITE(S): None

EXCLUSION(S): Open to students in Engineering Bridge

COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES / OBJECTIVES

The primary purpose of this course is to prepare students for entry into a department of Mechanical Engineering at the University level. ENGR 290 reviews material already covered in their background, firming their understanding of the material to ease the transfer into the third year of Mechanical Engineering at the University level.

Upon successful completion of this course a student will be able to:

- Sketch a phase diagram for some common materials and alloys.
- Interpret the phase diagram of any material.
- Discuss the behavior of polymers.
- Explain the first and second laws of thermodynamics.
- Apply the first law of thermodynamics.
- Apply the second law of thermodynamics.
- Analyze problems in a systematic manner using diagrams in developing and evaluating thermodynamic processes, and applying concepts to steady and non-steady flow processes.
- Apply the concepts of irreversibility and availability.
- Explain and analyze air standard cycles.
- Analyze Rankine, Regeneration and Refrigeration Cycles.
- Analyze ideal and non-ideal gas vapor behavior.
- Use psychrometric charts as applied to humidification, dehumidification and air conditioning.

REQUIRED MATERIALS & RECOMMENDED PREPARATION / INFORMATION

No textbook is required for this course. However, you should own one of the following recommended texts (any edition is acceptable) to ensure you have what you need for University-level Thermodynamics:

- Fundamentals of Engineering Thermodynamics (Moran, Shapiro)
- Fundamentals of Thermodynamics (Borgnakke, Sonntag)
- Fundamentals of Thermal-Fluid Sciences (Çengel, Cimbala, Turner).
